It is our view that the agreed provisions in the peace treaty now cover this and that further action by ACC is unnecessary.

We also assume that the "Eligible" in paragraph two of article thirty indicates that restitution is not necessarily mandatory. Presumably we would be able to consider in restitution to ex-enemy countries the effect on German minimum economy and consequent cost to the United States.

New subject: We have considered French conditions to accept the United States proposal for 30 June being established as a termination date for filing of claims. Of course, the French conditions render such a termination date completely ineffective. Their first condition merely provides a means for establishing a number of general claims by submitting an inventory of all French property removed from France without preventing the actual filing of specific claims at any time thereafter. However, the principal French objection appears to come from our rule requiring proof of removal by force or duress. To us this rule appears reasonable. The French would also like complete freedom of action to search for property in the US Zone. We cannot accept such freedom of action as we do not have the facilities to freely accommodate French teams for this purpose. We are also apprehensive that it would become great searching expedition.

We cannot accept the French position that our directives are paralyzing restitutions to France. We have restituted property valued at about thirty five million RM (1938 value) to France (exclusive of art objects) which represents forty percent of French claims filed. We do make all German declarations of looted property available to all Restitution Missions including the French Mission and all reparations inventories available to IARA in Brussels. We have always held that restitution of items removed from France by force or duress is mandatory. However, we have also held that items removed from France by purchase under contract are eligible for restitution to the extent not required by the German minimum economy; that is, when their return would not represent an additional cost to the United States. All of these matters are still under discussion with the French here.

Finally, with respect to the return to Hungary of one hundred twenty seven tons of silver, our evidence to date does not indicate that the silver was brought to Germany by force or duress. Under the treaty provisions it is therefore not subject to restitution. We have no objection to return of silver if its return is desired outside of the treaty provisions although this might create a precedent which would prove undesirable.

3. Early delivery to Hungary of 127 tons silver bars and coins said to belong Hungarian Ministry Finance and Mint, and 27 cases said to belong to Hungarian Orphans Court, both believed to be foreign exchange depository Frankfurt, would be particularly helpful in present difficult political and econ situation in Hungary.

4. Restitution to Austria and other ex enemy countries is almost equally pressing. US Govt has made commitments to these govts along lines those made Hungarian Govt. Nothing further.
